Want cheaper gas and electricity?

A free service recently launched can show people in Kyabram and surrounding areas how to get cheaper electricity and gas.

The creators of Switchselect.com, Leon Hayes and Steven Glover said with consumer confidence plummeting, the new, free impartial service, which allows individuals and families to compare many of the electricity and gas deals, had the potential to save people money.

Consumers can immediately compare the prices of electricity/gas suppliers and then select the one that is the cheapest option.

"We never guarantee savings to consumers but, because many deals are being compared on the website, people should be able to find a deal which can save them money," Leon said.

"The new service has been launched following the deregulation of the power industry," he said.

Leon was originally based in the UK and after deregulation happened there, services like Switchselect.com started to appear at a rapid speed to show consumers how to get a cheaper and better deal.

"Put simply, we show consumers on our website numerous available prices of many suppliers," Leon said.

Co-founder Steven Glover said, "Some power companies currently aren't our biggest fans because we allow consumers to see what is really going on with prices."

"Our service is about showing people deals so they can compare them," he said.

"To keep the service free for customers, we get a small fee from any switching that happens. It's the same fee for all power companies," Steven said.

To switch, people have to provide their postcode, current supplier and usage details. A recent energy bill will also assist.

By following five steps on Switchselect.com, people can switch in around five minutes and all information is securely protected.

The website is at switchselect.com
